A community forum on removing obsolete industrial oil tanks to revitalize our town

For over seventy years, South Portland High School and Kaler Elementary School students have lived in the daily shadow of industrial oil storage tanks that threaten our community. The nineteen aging vats at the Hill Street Tank Farm, now mostly idle, risk contaminating our air, soil, and groundwater. Exposure to their emissions can cause serious impacts to health and safety, endangering the well-being of our citizens and the environment.

Come learn how you can add your voice to the call from our community that can lead to the cleaner, greener future that is the birthright of the people of our town and our shared hope for the welfare of our planet.

Thurs., April 24, 6:30-8:30 PM
First Congregational Church
